STATE EXPERT KNOWS CEDAR TREE ENEMY

Paris Green or Arsenate of Lead Is the Best Remedy.

W. E. Rumsey, state entomologist, confirms the identification of the worm which destroyed the cedar tree on the place of Mr. Vangilder in Winfield district, which was made by J. Cooke White, of the Davey Tree Expert company.

Mr. Rumsey, who recognized the caterpillar from the description given in The West Virginian of Monday sent a copy of the Bulletin of the Agricultural Experiment Station of West Virginia University dated April 1, 1908, which contains the following reference to this same worm:

"The bagworm, T. yridopteryx ephemeraeformis.—This peculiar insect has caused some alarm in certain sections of the state during recent years. They have appeared in great numbers on apple and other fruit trees, and a fear has been felt that they might prove to be a serious orchard pest. It is a native species, however, whose habits are well known, and judging from the past, it is not likely to do serious damage to any tree except evergreens.

"The life history of the species is about as follows. It winters in the egg stage in the old female bag. In spring the young hatches and begins at once to feed on the nearest leaf, constructing a bag, while a case to cover its own body. The case is composed of web and bits of stick and is carried by the caterpillar wherever it goes. As the caterpillar grows the case, or bag, is enlarged, and when growth is completed it attaches the bag to a twig by a strong, silken band and changes within to a pupa. In about three weeks the male emerges as a dark-colored moth with transparent wings. The female never develops wings but remains as a grub-like object in the bag, where she is fertilized by the male. The eggs are laid in the bag, and then the female drops out and dies.

"The favorite food of the bagworm is arborvitae and other evergreens. The caterpillars multiply on such trees and become exceedingly abundant, when they often extend their ravages to fruit and other deciduous trees.

"The bags hanging to the branches are conspicuous objects during the winter months, and one of the best ways of ridding trees of this insect is to collect and destroy the bags while the trees are bare. Spraying infested trees in the summer with Paris green or arsenate of lead is also an effective remedy."

INDUSTRIAL FAIRMONT

A force of men was engaged today in moving the furnishings and equipment from the old home of Jones' store to its new location and within a few days the shelves, counters, wardrobes, cash carriers and all the other equipment of an up to date store will be completely installed. The work of moving was begun yesterday and it is expected that it will be completed and everything ready for the opening of the store about Saturday or Monday. The floor finishing machine, which has been operating on the first floor for the past few days, is now being used to get the upper floors in condition for the stain and varnish. The floor machine consists principally of a revolving drum which is covered with sand paper and which is pushed about over the floor while the drum is revolved at a high speed by an electric motor. The whirr and whine of the machine attracts a number of spectators to the place when it was being operated on the lower floor yesterday.

Repairs are completed in the window glass plant at Eleventh street and the plant will probably resume operations within a short time. Operations were suspended during the hot months of the summer and while the plant was shut down a number of repairs were made to the roof and other parts of the building. These are now completed and the schedule for reopening the plant "on or about September 1" will probably be adhered to. The window glass was the only plant in the city that completely suspended operations for the summer.

BREAK GROUND FOR BIG ARMOR PLANT

Secretary Daniels and Governor Cornwell Make Addresses At Charleston.

(By Associated Press)
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30.—Thousands of people assembled here today to attend the ceremonies incidental to the breaking of ground for the beginning of construction of the United States naval projectile manufacturing plant at South Charleston. In deference to the mayor's proclamation making the occasion a half-holiday, a majority of the manufacturing concerns and other business houses are closed.

Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, and Mrs. Daniels and their party, consisting of naval officials and their wives, arrived in the city at noon today. With two bands, a large crowd greeted them at the station. The visitors were taken directly to the home of former Governor W. A. MacCorkle where they were entertained at luncheon.

Accompanied by a parade of several hundred automobiles, the official party then started on a tour of the city and thence motored direct to the site of the armor plate plant in South Charleston.

With the Daniels party at the head of the procession, was Governor John J. Cornwell who made a brief address introductory to the address of Secretary Daniels which marked the actual ground-breaking. West Virginia was proud that her capital had been selected as the location for the nation's great armor plate industry—that that may be destined to play an important part in national life—said Governor Cornwell.

The governor, in emphasizing the state's willingness and desire to give the country every assistance possible in the vigorous prosecution of the war, made reference to that fact that at the time of the ground-breaking ceremonies, hundreds of the state's best men were assembling for training in order to serve under the national colors on foreign fields.

Former Senator William E. Chilton presided during the speech-making and made a brief introduction to Governor Cornwell's address.

Monongalia Musings

Bill Nye said that Noah Webster could spell the longest and most difficult words without effort. We can too, if permit is given to spell them out our own way. We would be exceedingly pleased to possess a spelling book which contains only this brief rule: "Spell all words just as you please, whose business is it but yours?" We infer from reliable evidence that such books are being adopted in Marion county, and anyone sending us a pre-paid copy stands a fair chance of being rewarded in a generous manner. Our reason for thinking that Marion county permits personal liberty in spelling is the fact that on a new Main street building in the city of Fairmont the word "premises" on a large sign banner is spelled "premisses." Down here in Monongalia such free and easy habits would be frowned upon extensively; college graduates would go into a delirium tremens, and school girls would giggle gloriously. Only dunces would remain careless and unconcerned.

After having devoted several hours to a profound study of the question, in which we were assisted by several placid philosophers, of which this county possesses a liberal supply, we have decided that the American hen and her companions are responsible for the high cost of living. The average hen will easily and eagerly devour $7.88 worth of grain per year. She will inflict cruel and usual punishment on her owner's garden to the extent of $4.12. To atone for this she lays a few eggs where even a book agent would fail to find them and with vain pomp and glory proclaims the alleged sacrifice she has made to a disgusted and deluded world. For these great crimes on the part of the hen we are constrained to salute with graceful gestures and glad smiles every chicken thief we chance to meet. He is a benefactor of the human race. He deserves our thanks, our aid and our comfort. Let us not harbor any ill feelings toward him and threaten him with the law. He should be welcomed in the homes of the good, the true and the beautiful. We have diligently sought him for years and it this meets his eyes, we trust he will not neglect such a fervid appeal to relieve us of a few desperate and diabolical hens.
